Director Extension Service

EACH year we take a retrospection of extension work in agriculture and home economics, and then a look into the future. The Alumnews presents an opportunity for both in 1952.

The Extension Service is one division of the land-grant college, the Alabama Polytechnic Institute—Our Alma Mater. Retrospection reveals these basic facts regarding extension work in Alabama:

1. It was founded and has developed in response to the needs of farm people.
2. It is educational, being based upon scientific information from our own Experiment Station, the experi-

BIBB County Agent J. O. Odum (right) and a farmer discuss cotton progress and problems. Alabama growers are producing cotton that ranks with the best in the Southeast. The Extension Service has held a key role in this development ences of farmers, and other reliable sources.

3. At the beginning, primary emphasis was on production; now the work has expanded to include the major economic, social, and cultural needs of all farm people.

4. It has been highly effective. This is revealed conclusively by official records of the federal government, the states, and others.

Cotton is saved

THIRTY to 40 years ago the Extension Service dealt primarily with cotton production. Boll weevils were spreading over the South; our No. 1 farm crop and the nation's No. 1 export product was in grave danger.

But cotton was saved—even greatly improved. In Alabama, yields per acre during recent years have been 50 to 100 per cent higher than before the coming of the weevils. Farmers, of course, did the job in response to and by the use of scientific information supplied by Extension workers regarding soil, seed, fertilizer, insect control, cultivation, and other factors in the production of cotton.

A few pioneer county agents who were employed to save the cotton industry lived and served to help plow up cotton to reduce the supply to a workable level. A. G. Harrell, Choctaw County agent, was one of these.

Our work with cotton has continued and will continue as far into the future

Director Davis reports on

Extension Service Work

as we can foresee. Alabama's 1951 cotton production record is proof of our never-ceasing efforts along this line.

Increased cotton production

IN 1951, Alabama farmers were asked to produce 60 per cent more cotton than they made in 1950. County agents carried the appeal and the know-how to them—and farmers hit the nail right on the head with a 60 per cent increase from 575,000 to 920,000 bales. This 345,000-bale increase had a market value of $72,450,000.

Now, however, cotton is only one major factor in Alabama agriculture. Corn is another. In fact, Alabama farmers plant about two acres in corn to every one in cotton. A few years ago we unfolded a program for more corn each year; in five years the average yield was increased 35 per cent.

The role of livestock

YEARS ago we began advocating more livestock to balance row crops and to improve the soil. And now Alabama has become the leading state in the South and one of the leading states in the nation in livestock improvement and expansion. Beef cattle development has been outstanding. This, in my judgment, will continue year after year, far into the future.

Along with row crops and livestock, we turned our attention to trees, realizing that 60 per cent of all land in Alabama is producing timber of some kind. And with an increase in demands for forest products has come a greater appreciation of the value of timber and timber land.

Farmers, working with their county agents, have come to recognize trees as a crop—the same as cotton and corn. Increased per-acre wood production each year is the No. 1 objective of our forestry program. And forests are responding to the proper treatment and good management.

gram is in sewing and dressmaking. Sarah Thomas, home agent of Etowah County, is shown giving sewing pointers story of Alabama agriculture. However, a few statistics should help to present clearly the record of the Extension Service in all phases of farming and farm homemaking.

Fewer farm families

WHEN extension work was established by the federal Smith-Lever Act of 1914, 34.9 per cent of the people, or 32,076,960, in the U. S. were on farms. In 1950, only 16.1 per cent, or 23,577,000, were members of farm families.

Fewer people on farms are producing adequate supplies of foods, fats, and fibers for everyone. In recent years production of farm products has been at a new high level.

Land area devoted to agricultural production in the U. S. has changed very little since the beginning of extension work. Instead of planting more acres, farmers have increased their yields per acre and per animal.

Increased production

FARMERS have also increased their per-man production. From 1940 to 1950, farm production increased 36 per cent per man; per industrial worker 11 per cent, or less than one-third of the farmer's increase.

These results have been accomplished by the farmers themselves through the use of scientific, technical, and economic information—the "big three" of extension work.

Looking ahead

I PREDICT that the change will continue. Instead of 16.1 per cent of the American people on farms 50 years from now, we expect the figure to fall to around 10 per cent; still, there'll be plenty of food and fiber for everybody, and farming will be improved in every way.

Thus we see that Auburn-trained men and women, employed by the Extension Service and armed with scientific, technical, and economic information from our own institution, are distinguishing themselves daily in constructive education for all the people of Alabama.

FEATURED in this issue of The Alumnews is the work of the A.P.I. Extension Service. A report on the work of the Extension Service is given by Director P. O. Davis. On page five articles about the work of the 4-H clubs and home demonstration work are featured. These articles by the leaders of the key phases of Extension Service work are written to acquaint the Auburn alumni with the work of one of A.P.I.'s three branches of service.

Auburn Songs Recorded

RECORDING of "The Songs of Auburn" was held on May 2 when a recording group from R.C.A. Victor came to the campus to record six Auburn songs for an album to be released in the fall.

Sponsored by the Auburn Alumni Association the recordings were made by the Auburn Band under the direction of David Herbert and Auburn choral groups under the direction of Walter Collins.

The "Alma Mater," "Auburn Victory March," "Tiger Rag," "Glory to Auburn," "Samford Tower," and "Hail To Auburn," were the songs recorded on the two 10-inch records.

The albums will be handled by the Alumni Association and information on orders will be carried in a later edition of The Alumnews. Only 1,000 will be printed.

Auburn Band conducts tour

DURING March the Auburn Band made a two-day tour of six Alabama towns along with President Ralph Draughon and Executive Secretary Joe Sarver. The tour was sponsored by the Alumni Association and the band alumni. These tours took the young Auburn musicians into Phenix City, Eufaula, Tuskegee, Dothan, Troy and Ozark where they

Open House Program Attracts 1,500

MORE than 1,500 visitors journeyed to the Plains for Auburn's first Open House program the week end of April 18 and 19. The program designed to show Auburn to prospective students, alumni, and friends, was centered around a event-packed week end in which students and faculty members worked to show how A.P.I. serves its students and the State of Alabama.

Many of the high schools throughout the state sent large groups to the festival. The prospective student was given a chance to see Auburn first hand and to also have questions answered concerning how he could become an Auburn student.

Each school and department in the institution sponsored some type of exhibit or demonstration. Students and faculty members combined efforts in all departmental activities and exhibits.

Tours, exhibits, parade

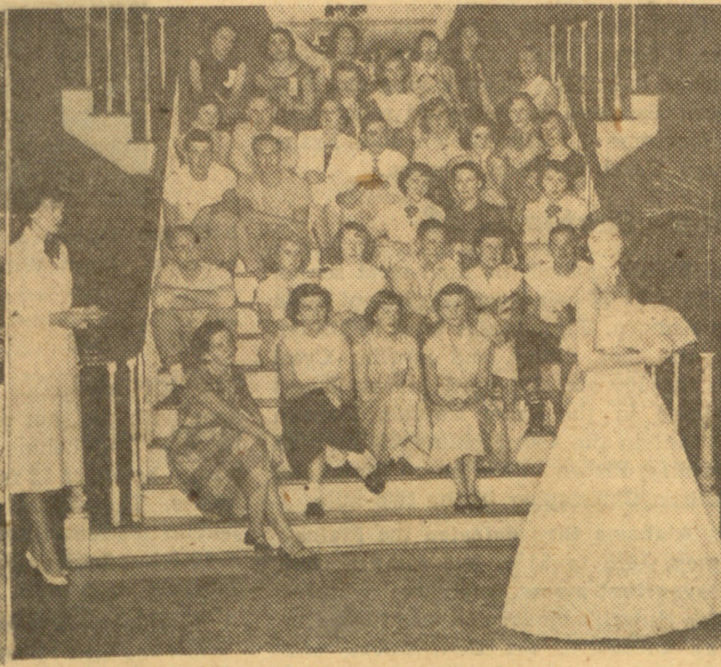

MANY of the tours of the campus and the exhibits received good attendance. More than 360 witnessed the Auburn Player's production of "The Parlor Story." The annual Block and Bridle Horse show drew approximately 1,000 and the Dolphin Club water festival received a capacity crowd. A parade Saturday afternoon featuring floats, exhibits, and the three military units attracted several thousand.

An estimated 4,500 turned out for the gala festival in the Cliff Hare Stadium on Saturday night, and approximately 2,000 attended the Open House Dance immediately following.

At the conclusion of the program both visitors, faculty and students were praising the success of the initial program. Chairman Ed Lee Spencer, of Auburn, summed up the general opinion of the first Open House when he stated:

"The Open House Committee hopes that this first program will be only a limited preview of the things that are to become of Open House here next year and in the years to come."

Auburn's biggest experiment in on-the-campus public relations was thus initiated. The result might be seen in summer and fall quarter freshman enrollment trends.

Auburn Wins Bama Series

By BILL BECKWITH

Alumnews Sports Editor

AUBURN'S baseball team has a long way to go in order to win the Southeastern Conference's baseball championship, but the unpredictable youngsters of Coach Dick McGowen won the "Alabama World Series" by defeating the University of Alabama three out of four games. The lone loss was in the home opener, 5-1. Victories were registered by scores of 8-4, 14-6, and 10-8.

... Tiger keystone artist

Slugging Bill McMurry, Fairfield junior who had to work overtime in order to win a berth after completing football spring training, put new life in the hot and cold aggregation.

Going into the key Florida four-game series, the 178-pound, six-footer was batting a hefty .439, with 20 runs-batted-in, three homers, two triples, and three doubles.

Plainsman drop five

THE PLAINSMEN hit the skids in early April. They defeated Georgia Tech in Atlanta, 11-4, then smacked Howard, 8-3, in Plainsman Park. Five straight defeats and one tie followed. Tech took Auburn in a double-header on the Plains, 10-3 and 3-2. The professional Montgomery Grays then took advantage of weak Tiger hurlers in a 17-4 thrashing.

In the dumps, Auburn fell to Howard in Birmingham, 8-7. Tulane came to the Village with one of their better teams and eked out a 10-7 opening victory, but found the going tough in the second game and were content with a 7-7 tie.

McGowen gathered his forces when the Rebels of Mississippi made their appearance and started a comeback trail that saw Auburn win five of their next six games and the "Alabama World Series."

Mississippi fell, 6-5 and 10-6. Alabama had no trouble in taking the opener, despite collecting only four hits off Bradberry. The big righthander pitched one of his best games, but six errors hurt the cause.

Bama blasted

IT WAS a different Auburn team in the second game of the series. Freshman first baseman George Reid unloaded with an inside the park homer and McMurry collected a double and a single to drive in two runs. Steady Ernie Snow pitched no-hit ball in eight of the nine innings. The Tide hopped on him in the fourth inning for four runs, on five hits.

The Tigers entered Tuscaloosa with blood in their eyes and left the Capstone with "War Eagles" that stunned the state. McGowen's boys unloaded with 12 hits and 14 runs in the opener, including home runs by Inman Veal, and the brother team of Bill and Dick McMurry. Little Bobby Jordan got into the act also with four rbi's on a double and a single, as Bradberry allowed only three hits and struck out nine.

The last game with Alabama went to Auburn 10-8, as Snow, lefty Jim Lockard, and Gene Hoehle mastered the mound. It was Hoehle's two-run homer in the top of the ninth that cinched the victory. B. McMurry again continued his hot batting pace with three for three, and two rbi's. Second baseman Bob Nagel also connected with a double and two singles.

McMurry is top hitter

GOING into May, B. McMurry was the batting leader with .439. He was followed by Hoehle, .358; Doyle Pair, .353; Reid, .326; Jordan, .321, and Veal, .313.

BUCK BRADBERRY

... most effective hurler

McMurry led the team in homers, three, and rbi's, 20. Jordan was second in runs scored, 16; led in triples with three; led in stolen bases with eight; had drawn 20 base-on-balls, and was tied with Veal for hits with 25.

Lockard tops the moundsmen with three victories against no defeats. He is followed by Hoehle (1-0), Bradberry (4-3), and Snow (3-3).

Bradberry has been the most impressive on the mound with 58 strikeouts in 58 innings, and has allowed only 30 hits, for an earned-run-average of 2.81.

Resting in third place in the SEC standings, behind Florida (9-1-1) and Tulane (8-3-1), Auburn (8-4-2) needed to sweep the four game series with Florida, and defeat Georgia in a two-game series to be the champs.

Despite team record

Track Stars Shine

By BILL BECKWITH

WILBUR HUTSELL'S track team has been in the headlines all spring, but the tracksters do not have a very impressive record in their three dual meets. The star-studded team defeated Mississippi State in the opener, but lost on successive Saturdays to Alabama and Florida.

Auburn needed a victory against Georgia Tech on May 3 to hold Hutsell's 31 year record of never finishing below the .500 percentage mark.

Injuries hurt team

ONE of the most interesting dual meets of the year for the Plainsmen might easily be a meet between the team's hospital list and the men participating.

It has been Auburn's worst year for injuries. Ace quarter-miler Don Johnson is the latest of the hospital group, as he pulled a muscle in the Southern Relays in Birmingham. Pole-vaulter Allan Parks has been on the disabled list all spring with a pulled muscle; miler Johnny Barton had a ruptured appendix; javelin thrower Bobby Land was out with a sore arm, plus handicaps to Joe Hennessy, high and low hurdler.

Even with these misfortunes, Hutsell refused to alibi. Instead he is proud of the showing his team has made.

Dillion wins again

IN his 1952 debut at the Florida Relays, Jim Dillion won the discus throw at 166 feet, three inches, and the shot put at 50 feet, seven inches. For his performance, he was given a trophy as the "Outstanding Performer." Sophomore Bill Fickling of Macon, Georgia, placed second in the high hurdles, and Montgomery's Fouts Bauer placed second in the discus to Dillion with 143 feet. Auburn's quarter-mile relay team finished third, and the mile relay team finished second with Johnson giving a great exhibition as he anchored the mile foursome.

Dillion won the discus throw the following week in the Southern Relays with a throw of 171 feet, four and one-half inches, to set a new Southern Relays record and to make the best throw of his career. The husky junior placed second in the shot put to Michigan's Roland Nilsson.

Freshman Creel made his debut in the 100-yard dash and finished a close second to L.S.U.'s Charlie Johnson. Auburn also won the 440-yard relay with a foursome of Julian Brown, John Francisco, Creel, and Don Johnson.

State beaten 72-58

AUBURN opened the dual meet season with a 72-58 win over Mississippi State in Auburn. First places went to Dillion in the shot, discus, and javelin; Creel in the 100 and 220-yard dashes; Ewart Atkins in the mile; Captain Duncan Bryant in the 440; Fickling in the high hurdles; Brown in the broad jump, and Allison Christopher in the two-mile.

Alabama then defeated the Plainsmen, 78½ to 51½, but Auburn won seven first places. Individual winners for Hutsell's cindermen was turned in by Dillion in the shot, discus, and javelin; Creel in the 100 and 220-yard dashes; Fickling in the high hurdles; and freshman James Spann in the pole vault.

BIG Jim Dillion will carry the main hopes of Coach Wilbur Hutsell's track team in the SEC track meet in Birmingham in the shot put, discus and javelin

Tide Wins

DILLION made his greatest performance with the shot put in his career as he came from behind to beat Carl Shield with a heave of 52 feet, 10 and one-half inches. The weight ace also threw the javelin 186 feet, three inches. Creel ran a 10.1 hundred and a 21.8 time in the 220-yard dash.

Florida came to the Plains the next week and won 78-48, although Auburn won the majority of the first places. First place winners were Dillion in the shot and discus; Fickling in the high hurdles; Creel in the 100 and 220-yard dashes; Christopher in the two-mile; Bryant in the 440; and Spann tied for first in the pole vault.

The outstanding performance of the day went to Dothan's Creel, as the 139-pound grid star turned in another amazing 21.2 time in the 220, and a 9.8 in the 100. Bryant made his best time in the 440 with a time of 50.1.

Following the Georgia Tech scrap, Auburn will journey to Birmingham for the Southeastern Conference meet on May 16-17.

Home Demonstration Agent

FROM a simple beginning to a complete program in home economy and farm living is a one-sentence history of A.P.I. Extension Service home demonstration work in Alabama.

That simple beginning consisted of an effort toward producing, canning, and using more tomatoes for greater food variety and for a better diet. The late Dr. L. N. Duncan was proud of the fact that he was the "first home demonstration agent"—as he put it—in Alabama; he conducted the first demonstration in tomato canning.

The first county home demonstration agents in Alabama were employed in Pike and Walker Counties. They began by working with both women and girls;

LILLIE M. ALEXANDER
... going into the home

later, their work with girls became known as 4-H Club work.

An expanded program

COUNTY by county and step by step the work grew, but it was several years before each county had a home demonstration agent. We now have one in every county and assistants in 50 counties. There are Negro home demonstration agents working with Negro women and girls in 36 counties.

That first tomato canning demonstration expanded into a complete program in foods and nutrition. Then clothing was added, followed by home management and home improvement.

The extension of electricity to rural Alabama brought added responsibilities to our staff. Farm families needed information regarding wiring homes and the use of electricity in all phases of farm and home life. This is just one example of the many changes that have taken place in farm living and rural economy.

The last big addition to the home demonstration program was in the broad field of citizenship and family life, which includes child care and training.

Reaching farm families

THUS we see that home demonstration work expanded along with the needs and opportunities of Alabama farm families. It is an important factor in enabling farm women to become informed regarding all phases of rural life and American citizenship, and to develop a growing interest in world affairs. This sums up the work and the goals of the 2,000 local clubs composed of 63,000 members in 67 counties.

Girls' work is accomplished through 2,900 club reaching 67,000 members; however, many of the girls are in 4-H Clubs composed of both boys and girls.

In addition to the women and girls in organized clubs, 50 to 60 per cent more women are reached in other ways, making a total of more than 100,000 farm women who are informed and benefited by home demonstration agents in Alabama. Our work is now being extended to non-farm people, whose needs are increasing.

The state staff

ALL home demonstration work is scientific, technical, and economic teaching. It is achieved through meetings, by demonstrations and lectures, through the press and radio, and by letters and other feasible means.

The state staff includes the state home demonstration agent, four district home demonstration agents, and seven subject-matter specialists who are experts in consumer education, foods and nutrition, clothing and handicraft, food preservation, child care and family life, home management, and home furnishings.

These specialists work in cooperation with the county home demonstration agents and assistant agents. A great deal of their time is spent in training leaders, which is the basis of the home demonstration program. Without leaders, the county home agents would be unable to reach effectively more than a small portion of those who are now being served educationally by the home demonstration workers.

Trained personnel

ALL members of our state professional staff have had graduate training, in addition to their home economics degrees from recognized institution of higher learning.

We have come a long way from those simple demonstrations with tomatoes—still, the future presents a bigger challenge but promises greater rewards.

4-H Club Program Expands

BY HANCHEY E. LOGUE, '32

State 4-H Club Leader

THE 4-H Club had its real beginning in 1909, but under a different name. That year Boys' Corn Clubs were organized in two Alabama counties—Calhoun and Tuscaloosa—with an enrollment of 392 farm boys.

As the Boys' Corn Clubs grew, Alabama girls became interested in forming their own clubs. The result was a Girls' Tomato Club, organized in 1911 at the Union School, near Troy, in Pike County. Another Girls' Tomato Club sprung up that same year in Walker County.

Early history

THREE years later, in 1914, Congress passed the Smith-Lever Act, setting up the Extension Service, which took over supervision of the Boys' Corn Clubs and Girls' Tomato Clubs.

Since 1914, 4-H Clubs have been an important phase of the work of Extension Service county agents and home demonstration agents in every part of Alabama.

Today, there are 9,075 communities in Alabama where 4-H Clubs or neighborhood groups meet from eight to 12 times each year. Each county has its 4-H Club Council, composed of representatives from every 4-H Club in the county.

These councils meet four or more times each year to plan county-wide activities, such as special projects, cattle, hog, and poultry shows, rallies, picnics, county camps, dress revues, talent elimination programs, and tractor clinics.

Quantity and quality

FOUR-H Club work has a natural appeal for boys and girls between eight and 21 years of age. It offers an opportunity for boys and girls to express themselves, to grow, to earn and learn by doing; also it provides a means for social development and recreation. Membership is entirely voluntary.

From 392 members in 1909, enrollment in Alabama 4-H Clubs has now grown to 128,231.

We not only have the quantity—we also have the quality. During 1951, Alabama 4-H Club members carried 193,090 projects, including room improvement, 5,080; farm safety, 1,258; special corn, 9,912; dress revue, 10,924; garden, 12,199; canning, 460,322 quarts; food preparation, 24,109; cotton, 3,647; dairy cattle, 5,828; beef cattle, 4,103; forestry, 1,731; wildlife, 1,200; hogs, 13,713; poultry, 9,051; health, 4,910, and clothing, 24,518.

State-wide activities

OTHER state-wide activities held last year were maintenance clinics in 35 counties, where 2,069 leaders and 4-H'ers were trained; 67 county-wide 4-H rallies, with 59,969 attending 105 4-H summer camps with an attendance of 6,482; 692 achievement days, with 106,164 participating; Rural Life Sunday programs in 1,193 churches in 52 counties, and National 4-H Club Week celebrations with special programs in 67 counties.

Thirty-one thousand 4-H Club meetings were held in Alabama last year. And 4-H'ers enjoyed 345 picnics.

The present program

FOUR-H Club work is a vital part of the A.P.I. Extension Service program in Alabama. The hub of the 4-H Club wheel is the project required of each 4-H'er. A.P.I. Experiment Station recommendations, which are the bases for projects, are carried to 4-H Club members through county Extension Service personnel and voluntary adult leaders.

In order to have a good overall project program, Alabama has some 28 state-wide 4-H Club projects. Special incen-

1. A special certificate of recognition for every 4-H Club member who completes his or her project and turns in the record.
2. Project medals to the boy or girl having one of the best completed projects in the county. Special medals are awarded in each of the 28 projects.
3. A free trip to the National 4-H Club Congress for the highest state winner in each project.
4. Special recognition for the top four boys and girls in Alabama, who each year receive free trips to the National

Each Alumnus Receives Alumnews

DURING the past few months many alumni have asked why both the man and wife, who are alumni of Auburn, are sent separate copies of The Alumnews. The Alumni Association has found that it must keep a mailing list of individual alumni because (1) it is necessary to keep a complete file by classes and schools; (2) both man and wife would like to receive football order blanks; (3) and the American Association of University Women wants a yearly listing of all alumnae.

General Hart left Quantico, Virginia on December 28 to depart for his new assignment. At Quantico he had served as Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools.

'Miss Hattie' is voted

Favorite Teacher

HATTIE Finley, '09, who has been teaching at Blountsville for more than 40 years, was elected as "The Favorite Teacher of 1952" in a contest conducted by the Birmingham Post-Herald.

More than 800 letters poured into the Post-Herald seconding the J. B. Pennington High School teacher for the nomination of favorite teacher.

After receiving her B.S. degree from Auburn in 1909, "Miss Hattie" returned to Blountsville to teach. The present principal, J. B. Pennington, '13, found her there when he went to Blountsville in 1917. Thus began a partnership which has resulted in the knitting of a whole community together for a common purpose: character building.

Twice during her long tenure at Blountsville the school has burned, but each time with the work of "Miss Hattie" and the citizens, the school has been built back better than the one destroyed by fire. During the summers of 1919 through 1922 Miss Finley studied at the University of Chicago and received her B.A. degree. She later received her Master's degree from Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee.

The run-down little school which "Miss Hattie" found when she went to Blountsville is now a modern $250,000 structure which adequately serves the needs of the community. This vast material improvement stands as a permanent salute to "Miss Hattie" and her associates who have developed the Blountsville school system.

4-H Club Work

4-H Club Camp, in Washington, for outstanding leadership.

4-H club camp

ONE of the highlights of 4-H Club work is the State 4-H Club Camp, which is held annually on the A.P.I. campus. On July 7-12 some 750 4-H Club boys and girls and their leaders plan to attend this event—the 32nd one held here.

Many of these boys and girls will "catch" the college spirit or the desire to attend college. While they are here, members of the college 4-H Club appear before the state camp delegation and answer any question that the delegates have regarding college life at Auburn.

This annual State 4-H Camp brings together the top 4-H Club boys and girls in Alabama. They are lucky to have an opportunity to visit A.P.I. On the other hand, we think A.P.I. is fortunate to have the finest rural boys and girls in Alabama on the campus a week each year.
